Q13 - What is your overall opinion of this instructor as a teacher? Explain.

Faculty: Andrew Lorent

Response Rate: 58.33% (7 of 12)

- Professor Lorent is a very good instructor. He is passionate about the topic of complex analysis and it is clear he knows the subject well.
- Overall, Professor Lorent was a great professor and made the class enjoyable. He was always prepared for class and made very good use of class time and never kept class over. Homework assignments were reasonable and helped to prepare for the exam.
- Out of the three courses that I'm taking in this semester, he is the best instructor!
He is a great professor who has a broad and thorough knowledge of the course. Even though the class seemed to be lethargic all the time, he always showed enthusiasm in presenting the topics and he also encouraged the class all the time to participate in discussion. I like that he was strict in terms of us not using our phones during class since it definitely helps the students to be more focused in absorbing the lessons. I hope he should continue his teaching style since it is really effective.
- Great!
- Excellent!
Andrew Lorent is a better teacher than any math professor I've had so far. He balances theoretical and practical aspects of the course very well.
- The way he assigns homework and exams makes it extremely easy to stay organized. He communicates with students very well both in class and out of class.

Q14 - Comments and/or suggestions

Faculty: Andrew Lorent

When considering subject-wise, I would prefer more if he put up the reference text book through the over head projector and do the explanations on the board.

So we also can bring the book (either the hardcopy or the soft copy) and use it without taking down all the notes.

- So that we will get more time to discuss the principles and do more sums.

But anyway Thank you for being an enthusiastic professor who truly cares about the students

- 2 Singling students out to answer questions is sometimes uncomfortable, so maybe consider driving class engagement in different ways. Writing on the board is occasionally difficult to read. Also consider giving more practice of proofs for those who have not been exposed to them in the past.

Singling out students can be uncomfortable and he could motivate students to participate in class in a different way.

Sometimes his handwriting can be hard to read on the board as well.
- 3 The class, especially towards the end, could be slowed down. It feels like he's rushing through material starting at the second half of the semester.

In addition, he should slow down when explaining proofs.
- 4 It is better if he would present with the text book on the screen.
- 5 I suggest that he will not change.
- 6 Excellent!
